In a group of men the other day, the subject of catching rabbits came up. Everyone had at some time in his life known a dog that had caught a rabbit on the stretch.

Mr. Lon Proctor was present, and this was a little against his belief. He does not believe the dog is living that can catch a rabbit on the clear stretch, that is, if the rabbit is well and hearty. Lon said:

"Any time a dog starts after a rabbit with the rabbit's own knowledge of it, that rabbit is due in England that moment." It was a laughable affair in every degree. Lon continued: "I have asked every man wh knew of a dog that could eatch a rabbit, where that dog is, and they invariably say, 'he's dead;' and any time you hear of a dog catching a BICYCLES rabbit in the clear, you can just say, 'That rabbit was sick.''
